

ON THE COVER: Retired Marine fighter pilot Paul Entrekin flies a MiG-15*bis* near Chino, California, in 1987. That year, the fighter that once terrified B-29 crews in Korea (p. 40) began entertaining U.S. airshow fans. Photo by Frank Mormillo. BELOW: The YF-12 Blackbird is one of only two U.S. jet aircraft types ever to hit Mach 3. U.S. Air Force test pilot Fitzhugh L. Fulton Jr. flew them both, along with some slowpokes like the Mach 2 B-58 Hustler (p. 52).

AIR & SPACE

Smithsonian

Features

- 22 The Laser Threat
 The green flashes in cockpits have caught the attention of the FBI.
 BY CHRISTINE NEGRONI
- 26 Adventures in PsyOps
 A different kind of carpet-bombing in Vietnam.
 BY WINSTON GROOM

- 34 Right This Way to the Space Station
 NASA saw scientists who wanted to conduct studies in zero-G; this new company saw customers.
 BY HEATHER GOSS
- 40 MiG!
 How the first Soviet jet fighter stopped the mighty B-29 in Korea.
 BY STEPHEN JOINER

- 48 Interstellar
 Though it could take 1,000 years and the spaceship that could do it hasn't been invented, scientists still study ways of getting to the stars.
 BY DAMOND BENNINGFIELD

- 52 He Flew the Motherships
 In the golden age of X-planes, a self-effacing test pilot was unique.
 BY CARL POSEY
- 60 The Great War Gallery
 World War I: Photos from Britain's Imperial War Museums.

Departments

- | | | | |
|---|--|---|---|
| 2 Viewport Good news from the space station | 10 Soundings A Curtiss pusher, a B-25, and Beechcraft QU-22Bs | 20 In the Museum Wilbur Wright and the Statue of Liberty | 76 Credits |
| 4 Letters | 16 Above & Beyond Bomber lands on golf course; town goes wild. | 66 Sightings Seaplane lust | 78 Forecast Coming in future issues |
| 8 What's Up That is not helping the pilot. | 18 Oldies & Oddities Skylab memories | 68 Reviews & Previews Books on flight for young readers | 80 One More Thing The V-1 Buzz Bomb, Americanized |